Longtime Dem activist
Sutker sold on BradleySteve
NEAL
Talking Politics

Democratic presidential hopeful Bill Bradley has gained the support of Cook County Commissioner Calvin R. Sutker, the former state Democratic chairman.

"Bradley is our party's best hope of keeping the White House," said Sutker, 76, the Niles Township Democratic committeeman who headed the state Democratic Party from 1983 until 1986 and played a major role in Walter F. Mondale's Illinois primary victory that clinched his nomination for the presidency.

Sutker said Bradley would have a much better chance of winning the presidency in the general election than Vice President Al Gore. "I've got great respect for Gore, but I don't think that he can beat [probable Republican nominee] George W. Bush," Sutker said. "Bradley would be competitive with Bush in the suburbs, where the next presidential election is going to be decided."

Former Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III, who is organizing Bradley's Illinois campaign, recruited Sutker, who has long been a leader among the 30 township committeemen and also has played an active role in the Jewish community.

"I agree with Adlai that it's Bradley's time," Sutker said. "He's an independent and an outsider who will have strong appeal across the board. Bradley would be our party's strongest candidate and is the one Democrat who can beat Bush."

Sutker will be opening a Bradley headquarters in Skokie for the 9th Congressional District and the northern suburbs. "You're going to see a lot of support for Bradley in our area," Sutker said.

"When I polled my captains, they were almost evenly divided between Bradley and Gore. But when I asked them who would be our party's strongest candidate, they said that Bradley would help us the most."

Sutker, who served in the General Assembly from 1985 until 1991 and has been a county commissioner since 1994, has headed the Niles Township Democratic organization since 1978. The liberal Sutker was aligned with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's 1980 presidential bid and with Mondale in 1984. As the party chairman, he was the first major Illinois political figure to propose Sen. Paul Simon as a contender for the 1988 Democratic presidential nomination. Simon won the '88 Illinois primary and, though he lost out on the nomination, showed strength in the Iowa precinct caucuses and the New Hampshire primary.

From talking with other suburban committeemen, I believe that Bradley will do very well in the townships," Sutker said. "Even though Gore is highly regarded, there are doubts about whether he can win. Bradley is a fresh face and a new personality who is also talking substance on the issues. I've got no doubt that he could defeat Bush in the general election. I'm not quite so certain about Gore."

Sutker is a veteran of Democratic presidential politics. In the 1950s, he was an active supporter of Illinois Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson's two bids for the White House. Sutker later backed John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson in their successful campaigns. But Sutker was disappointed that his favorite contender of the last two decades, former New York Gov. Mario M. Cuomo, never made an active bid for the presidential nomination. Sutker recruited delegates in all of the state's congressional districts for a '92 Cuomo presidential candidacy that never was.

"Cuomo could have won the nomination and the presidency," Sutker said. "The country lost when Cuomo decided not to run. Bradley, like Cuomo, is a politician of substance and accomplishment. We're lucky that Bradley has decided to make this race. It will be good for the country. If he's nominated, he will be elected. Bradley has enormous appeal across the spectrum."

Sutker, a University of Chicago political science and law graduate, respects Bradley's intellect. But Sutker said that Bradley's background as an All-American basketball star at Princeton and his Hall of Fame career with the New York Knicks shouldn't be underestimated. "Part of Bradley's appeal is that he's everybody's All-American," Sutker said. "He's a political figure of considerable substance who is also a sports legend. Bradley is also the guy that our party needs in November 2000."

Reno joins tribute to victim of Smith

BY MARK SKERTIC
STAFF REPORTER

While federal investigators continue examining the work of the World Church of the Creator, Attorney General Janet Reno will be in Bloomington, Ind., tonight remembering a victim of one of the church's disciples.

Reno will join other government officials and community leaders at a service for Indiana University graduate student Won-Joon Yoon, a victim of Benjamin N. Smith, the Winnetka native whose two-state shooting spree began July 2.

"I just know she wanted to participate," Justice Department spokeswoman Chris Watney said of Reno's visit. "It's something that's important to her."

Yoon was the last of Smith's victims. Smith pulled up outside a Bloomington church July 4 and shot Yoon while he stood outside. Smith fatally shot himself that night while being chased by police near Downstate Salem.

In the days since, local, state and federal officials have pushed to the East Peoria-based church that preaches a gospel of racial hatred and intolerance. Smith was a follower of the church and its leader, Matthew Hale.

Smith targeted Orthodox Jews, African Americans and Asians in a shooting spree that began in West Rogers Park. He wounded nine people and killed Yoon and former Northwestern University basketball coach Ricky Byrdson.

Yoon's mother also will take part in tonight's service. Similar services are planned Tuesday in Carbondale, where Yoon attended Southern Illinois University, and at the Covenant Korean Church in Northbrook on Thursday.

While Smith's rampage has brought attention to the World Church of the Creator, some of it has been unwelcome government scrutiny. The Illinois attorney general's office could announce today whether it will sue the church for not registering as a charity.

The state Revenue Department also is investigating whether the church, whose products include Brighter World, violated sales tax laws.

Attempts to contact Hale, who uses the title "pontifex maximus," were unsuccessful Sunday.

Federal authorities were tipped Sunday about how strong the link is between the church and two California brothers suspected of killing a gay couple and setting fires at three synagogues in that state.

A search of the home of Benjamin and James Williams turned up a variety of anti-Semitic writings, including some produced by Hale's organization.

While federal authorities refused to comment on any link between the Williams brothers and Hale's teachings, several anti-hate groups said Hale's group long has advocated violent actions.

"They say they advocate racial holy war, not violence," said Harlan Loeb, Midwest civil rights director/counsel for the Anti-Defamation League. "War involves violence."

Rabbi Marvin Hier, founder of the California-based Simon Wiesenthal Center, said he is disturbed by the escalation of intolerance by some groups.

"Hale's group and others have taken it up a notch," he said. "Before, they were exercising their rights by wanting to be in parades and getting in your face. Now it's

Won-Joon Yoon.

Sutker hit with federal subpoena

By Robert Becker
TRIBUNE STAFF WRITER

Federal agents probing possible ghost payroll in county government delivered a subpoena Thursday to the office of Cook County Commissioner Cal Sutker (D-Skokie), seeking county employment records of a family member of one of Sutker's top aides, according to county and federal sources.

Investigators are seeking employment history and work records of a relative of Barbara Panozzo, a longtime assistant to Sutker, according to sources familiar with the subpoena,

Panozzo declined to comment Thursday on the subpoena or the nature of the investigation other than to say,

Panozzo

"This is a payback and a lie."

Asked about the subpoena during a brief interview in his office, Sutker, an attorney and former chairman of the state Democratic party, said, "I have no comment."

Randall Samborn, a spokesman for U.S. Atty. Scott Lassar, also declined to comment.

Federal investigations of ghost payrolling—the practice of putting on a public payroll politically connected friends or relatives who do little or no work—have kept prosecutors busy in recent years

They have filed charges against at least three dozen city and county employees in a probe known as Operation Haunted Hall. The alleged ghost payrollers uncovered by investigators included several working for seven City Council committees.

Among the targets was former Cook County Treasurer Edward Rosewell, who was indicted in 1997 along with a deputy and two state legislators on ghost payroll charges.

Rosewell, who held the office for six terms before retiring, pleaded guilty to placing the legislators in no-work county jobs. Rosewell died last July.

The fact that the current investigation touches Sutker's office surprised some top county officials.

With a passion for history, Sutker is known for handing out books as gifts to visitors. He is considered one of the more articulate and thoughtful members of the County Board.

"It's really unbelievable," said one county official who asked not to be identified.

Sutker was elected to the County Board in 1994 after several terms in the Illinois legislature. He is also the Niles Township Democratic committeeman.

In 1997, Sutker tried to unseat County Board President John Stroger. Saying he was motivated by the need for tougher ethics laws, Sutker said he would prohibit elected county officials from receiving campaign contributions from vendors or the employees of vendors who did business with the county.

But he has come under fire in recent weeks after officials for the North Shore Mosquito Abatement District killed a $25,000 no-bid contract they had awarded to his daughter and son-in-law to produce a newsletter.

Sutker, who controls appointments to the five-member unpaid abatement district board, recommended the newsletter idea to the board to help contend with recent public relations problems. He said he saw no problem with the contract because his daughter is qualified to do the work.

New buzz on mosquito panel spending

Official's daughter gets $25,000 contract

By Cornelia Grumman
TRIBUNE STAFF WRITER

Amid mounting criticism it has become a hub of political patronage, the tiny agency responsible for controlling mosquitoes along the North Shore secretly awarded a $25,000 newsletter-writing deal to the daughter of the Cook County commissioner who oversees it.

At last month's district meeting, the five-person board voted in a closed meeting to sign a letter of agreement with the daughter of Commissioner Cal Sutker (D-Skokie) to produce six newsletters over the next six months.

Sutker defended the hiring, asserting that his daughter's firm is highly experienced and qualified for the job.

"I don't consider this patronage," said Sutker, who controls appointments to the five-member board of the North Shore Mosquito Abatement District.

No other desktop publishing companies were considered, trustees said.

Sutker said he recently advised the board to produce a newsletter as a way to better inform North Shore residents about what the independent taxing body does.

"I told the board that they should consider anyone that they think is capable, and among those

I consider capable are Sharon and Jim McGowan," Sutker said Thursday, referring to his daughter and son-in-law, both former journalists who now own the Skokie-based Desktop Edit Shop.

"But I have in no way, nor will I, intervene in this contract," he said.

The measure was introduced by trustee Donald Israel, who was appointed to the board by Sutker and who also is active in Niles Township Committee politics. Sutker is committeeman of the Democratic political organization.

The district's newest trustee, Evelyn Raden of Evanston, said she had no idea until Thursday of the company's connections to Sutker. On the board only two months, Raden said she voted for the measure because she wanted residents to be better informed about spraying schedules.

"But then when I started thinking about it, I thought, 'What are we doing? We're spending $25,000 for six newsletters? We don't need six newsletters!'" she said.

Now, Raden said she plans to suggest to the board at its meeting Monday night that the offer be rescinded.

"I don't think it's terrible that we were giving them the contract, I just think it doesn't look nice," she said.

Raden also plans to suggest that the number of newsletters be reduced to two and that the newsletter be done internally with current staff.

"I don't even know what they'd say in six newsletters," she laughed. "There's not that much to talk about."

The newsletter adds fuel to the district's recent problems, from questionable trip expenses to two sexual harassment settlements in as many years.

It also marks the second time since 1998 that the four-page mosquito newsletter has come under fire.

In 1998, the board hired Marty Walsh—who later became Cook County Sheriff Michael Sheahan's top political operative—to produce a monthly newsletter. But the first two were so riddled with spelling and grammatical errors—even the word mosquitoes was misspelled—that the board ended up firing Walsh.

U.S. seeks mosquito district's records

Agency gets subpoena in ghost payroll probe

By Cornelia Grumman
TRIBUNE STAFF WRITER

A probe into allegations of ghost payroll in Cook County government moved to the North Shore Mosquito Abatement District Monday, as federal agents subpoenaed employment records of a politically connected former worker.

The subpoena sought details of the work history of Michael Panozzo, son of a top aide to Cook County Commissioner Cal Sutker (D-Skokie), according to district Supt. William Henry.

Henry said investigators asked for all time sheets and work records of Panozzo covering the six months he was employed by the district, June to December 1998.

Panozzo, 33, is the son of Barbara Panozzo, Sutker's top assistant.

Despite no entomological experience, Michael Panozzo was hired at $40,000 a year for a position created specially for him by the mosquito district board: chief inspector of mosquito and larva sites.

For 20 years before Panozzo's hiring, the district had used only one chief inspector, Henry said, but then board members added another.

Among the references Panozzo listed on his résumé when he applied for the job were Sutker, who controls appointments and makes hiring recommendations at the agency, and Cook County State's Atty. Dick Devine, according to sources at the district.

Asked whether political connections helped Panozzo land the district job, Henry said, "I'm pretty sure. I think you know how people are hired here."

Neither Barbara Panozzo nor Michael Panozzo could be reached for comment on Monday. Attorney David Stetler, who is representing both Panozzos, declined to comment.

The subpoena was served on the mosquito district days after the Tribune reported that federal agents had served a subpoena on Sutker's office, seeking similar records regarding the possible employment there of a relative of Barbara Panozzo. Michael Panozzo worked for Sutker in the first part of 1999, according to several government sources. County officials, though, could not confirm that.

On Monday Sutker reiterated his pledge of cooperation with the probe.

"I am cooperating fully in gathering and producing the documents requested by the U.S. attorney," Sutker said. "I am confident that an investigation will demonstrate that there has been absolutely no wrongdoing in my office."

Since August, Michael Panozzo has been working full-time for the Illinois secretary of state as a senior facilities manager at an annual salary of $57,984. Three driver's license facilities—Wheaton, Lombard and Naperville—report to him.

Besides his county and Mosquito Abatement District jobs, Panozzo also has worked for the Metropolitan Water Reclamation District and the City of Chicago, according to the government sources.

"He wasn't happy here, because he really wanted to be superintendent," Henry said. "He told me."

Panozzo's résumé states he attended Eastern Illinois University, Chicago State University and Triton College.

mosquito agency, he worked for the county for four years as an operating engineer monitoring cooling system chillers in downtown buildings, according to his résumé.

Before that, Panozzo worked as a shift engineer for the John Buck Co., a development firm, and briefly in 1985 as a "water sampler" for the Metropolitan Water Reclamation District.

Dear Sir,

So you proclaim that you want to catch evil doers, big and small.

The enclosed article appeared in the Chicago Tribune a few months ago. There has been no follow up information that has been made public. However, there are some people that have been appointed to serve on various committees by Mr. Sutker who do no, or only token work, while drawing paychecks for the "dutiful productivity on behalf of the citizens". I think that padding public payrolls is cheating the public.

If you really do go after politicians who do dishonest acts, here is information to work on.

Hope this is of help and that you will do something about it. Thank you.

Sutker hit with federal subpoena

By Robert Becker
TRIBUNE STAFF WRITER

Federal agents probing possible ghost payrolling in county government delivered a subpoena Thursday to the office of Cook County Commissioner Cal Sutker (D-Skokie), seeking county employment records of a family member of one of Sutker's top aides, according to county and federal sources.

Investigators are seeking employment history and work records of a relative of Barbara Panozzo, a longtime assistant to Sutker, according to sources familiar with the subpoena,

Panozzo declined to comment Thursday on the subpoena or the nature of the investigation other than to say,

"This is a payback and a lie."

Asked about the subpoena during a brief interview in his office, Sutker, an attorney and former chairman of the state Democratic party, said, "I have no comment."

Randall Samborn, a spokesman for U.S. Atty. Scott Lassar, also declined to comment.

"They'll accept anybody," said Pete, 44, an ex-convict from Chicago who declined to give his last name. "As long as you have nowhere to go, you are welcome here. . . . And they always treat you like you're a guest in a restaurant."

Every guest is required to enter a particular track, a structured program designed to address either an addiction, a physical or mental health problem, or unemployment.

Clues for the Cook County Clueless

Thirteen members of the Cook County Board need some help. They think they can't balance their budget without inventing a new tax. And rather than trim their carefree spending, they're already looking for more ways to pick pockets. Commissioners, look no further. Below you'll find a helpful list of new revenue sources.

First, readers should meet these 13 members of the Cook County Clueless. An editorial last week explained that they were about to approve a needless tax of up to a dollar a day on parking in commercial lots—a surcharge sure to backfire by driving shoppers to malls outside Cook County. Why the tax? Because the Clueless can't figure out how to trim a mere seven-tenths of 1 percent from their bloated, $2.7 billion budget.

Why call them Clueless? Because it hasn't dawned on them that governments across the U.S. are cutting expenses, privatizing services and doing business smarter, even if that means—heaven forbid!—cutting back on their loyal patronage armies of pals and pals.

Here, then, are the 13 commissioners who voted to approve the parking tax last week: Jerry Butler. Allan Carr. Earlean Collins. John Daley. Gregg Goslin. Ted Lechowicz. Roberto Maldonado. William Moran. Joseph Moreno. Deborah Sims. Bobbie Steele. Cal Sutker. And John Stroger Jr., president of the board. Some hunched over, looking scared, as they cast their votes Tuesday. Maybe they hadn't expected so much opposition from civic and business groups. Maybe the mere suggestion that they not rubber-stamp a tax left them with unsettled tummies. Especially so close to lunchtime.

Stroger did assure them that he's committed to more of this business as usual. He said that in the future he'd be "looking for alternative type taxes other than homeowner taxes." If only he had said: "This board's idea of management is so obsolete that we can save the taxpayers a bundle just by doing our jobs. For a change."

But if it's new taxes the commissioners need, so be it. As a public service, here are possible taxes that should help the Clueless balance future bloated budgets:

- A tax on plush blue leather chairs adorned with a seal of Cook County. The board room is full of them.

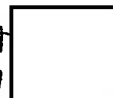

- A tax on blank stares, which appear when independent board members fight tax increases. (Find the cushy blue chairs and you've found the blank stares.)

- A tax on over-the-hill management practices. To the Clueless, the question is how to line up more revenues to pay for out-of-control expenditures that are growing faster than inflation. As for aggressive cost-cutting, that isn't even on the table. This was considered superb executive vision—in the 1950s.

- A tax on lame excuses. The Clueless continue to blame unfunded mandates from Springfield for part of their inability to meet a budget. But unpleasant surprises hit families and businesses every day. The rest of us make the tough adjustments. The County Board's solution is to launch yet another tax.

- A tax on cowering behind sheriff's deputies. The Clueless say they can't reject ever-bigger budgets because that could imperil public safety. That's an insult to the hard-working professionals who keep the peace in Cook County. Ask any one of them how many political hacks and well-connected relatives they know on the county payroll (personnel expenses are up a breathtaking 43.6 percent since '95). Commissioners, cut the fat.

- A tax on dead wood. This should be levied soon, because after the next election, there may be less of it.
